New York Pizza Pleases Customers With the Freshest Ingredients

"Most people who don't like pizza have only tried frozen or commercial types," says Tony Montuori, manager of New York Pizza.

New York Pizza prides itself on using only the best and freshest ingredients. Their sauce and dough are made fresh daily and their cheese is the best available. These basic ingredients (crust, sauce and cheese) form a true pizza. Toppings may be added to suit individual tastes.

New York Pizza offers two types of pizza: the thin, round Neapolitan and the thick, square Sicilian. Each has a distinct flavor. Besides pizza, Tony's menu features hamburgers, calzones, sausage rolls, salads, stuffed pizza and almost every kind of sub you could think of.

In addition to delicious food, New York Pizza offers customers a prime, easy access location and a comfortable dining atmosphere. Before he started his shop in May 1983, Tony chose this busy Vinton area as the perfect place to begin his business. He invites new customers to try New York Pizza — and regular customers to come back for more.

Pizza has gotten a bad reputation. It is actually lower in fat, cholesterol and calories than most people think. It's a good source of protein, calcium and complex carbohydrates, as well as vitamins and minerals, too. The average slice of pizza, depending on the toppings, is about 182 to 264 calories!
